The Week In the Legislature

By J. S. Cowper

With the Legislature making strenuous efforts to prorogue on the Thursday before Good Friday, and with a provincial general election to follow soon after, the government showed its appreciation of the needs of the hour by bringing down two bills to muzzle the press of the province.

One provides penalties of $5,000.00 each on the owner, printer, editor, and master printer of any newspaper that should bring any of the evidence in divorce cases, or cases involving sexual offences. The other is to take away from any newspaper the protection of an apology upon finding that it has printed in error news reflecting upon any person.

Though the government disclaimed that the two bills have any connection with the appeal of cases now pending in the courts involving the love lives of two of the ex-ministers, the measures were denounced in strong terms by Liberals, Conservatives and Independents alike as an attempt to bulldoze the press of the province and put an end to the freedom which the press enjoys in common with other British countries. For a whole afternoon the battle raged, the government finally consenting to relieve the foreman printer of the $5,000.00 penalty on representations that he is only a hired workman without any discretionary powers. These two bills were passed on Monday evening, after a most heated debate.

As a result of protests in the press and the House, the bill to prevent Prof. W. H. Alexander of the provincial university from running as a Labor candidate in Edmonton in the forthcoming federal election has been withdrawn. The University governors intimate that they will suspend efforts to prohibit members of the faculty from seeking to serve the public, for one year. This will enable Dr. Alexander to run in the Edmonton seat. Though federal by-elections for vacant seats have been called for August 19, it is expected that a federal general election will be held on or before that date. June 20 is the probable date on which the provincial general elections will be held.

In order to prevent the University of Alberta from being again made liable for damages in the event of further hazing of students as part of their higher education, the government brought in an amendment to the University Act, protecting the University from civil suits for damages, without its consent. In the recent Powlett case, in which youth was driven insane during the hazing process, the damages and legal expenses incurred by the province exceeded $50,000.00.

The Act to Promote Stability in the Agricultural Industry was the government's answer to requests for a moratorium for farmers, or for scaling down of farm debts. According to Dean J. Weir of the law department of the University who was a witness before the Agricultural Committee, there is a constitutional difficulty in scaling down the debts of any class of the community. It is a case of all or none, he said, to avoid disallowance on the ground that it related to bankruptcy. But if all debts were scaled down, then the banks need only pay part of their debts to depositors, insurance companies need only pay part of the full amount of policies and the government need only pay part of its government savings certificates. That would be mischievous. The government gets round it by protecting from seizure without the consent of the Debt Adjustment Board, which is empowered to see that the farmer is protected in his needs for food, clothing and seed, ahead of landlord, merchant, mortgagee or other creditors.

Social Credit of the kind advocated with much force by Wm. Aberhart of Calgary is the keenest thorn in the side of the government, and the objects of its bitterest attacks. In addition to the addresses denouncing the Aberhart plan delivered by Mr. Speaker Johnson, the ex-premier Mr. Brownlee is delivering a series of radio broadcasts denouncing the Aberhart plan. He was joined by the Conservative leader D. M. Dugan last week, who in a radio address accused Mr. Aberhart of bad faith in not appearing before the Legislature or assisting the government with an exposition of his plan when invited to do so.

The Agricultural Committee summoned last Friday, Dean J. Weir of the University Law School and Prof. G. A. Elliott, of the Department of Economics as expert witnesses on the constitutionality and the economic possibility of the Aberhart plan. Both of them were against its validity.

Prof. Elliott declared it would cost $120,000,000 a year to meet the requirements of the "non-negotiable certificates" and unless this was obtained by taxation or borrowing, a form of inflation would ensue that would drive legal tender out of the province and make the non-negotiable certificates valueless. He made calculations to show that it would only benefit those who earn less than $4,000 a year, while it would take in taxes more than it gives to those over $450.00 a year.

Dean Weir was emphatic that the Aberhart plan is in the teeth of the British North America Act and of Section 138 of the Bank Act and would not be allowed. The "non-negotiable" aspect of the certificates, he said, would not get round the prohibition against issuing legal tender or a substitute for it. Instead, it indicates that it is for purposes of subterfuge and would therefore be held ultra vires.

Of the party leaders only W. R. Howson, K.C. for the Liberals has proved hospitable to Social Credit. He has qualified his acceptance by the requirement "so far as it can be proved practicable by Mr. Aberhart and Major Douglas in their forthcoming report."

SOCIAL CREDIT PLAN DEFECTS OUTLINED

PROF. ELLIOTT GIVES EVIDENCE
BEFORE AGRICULTURAL COMMITTEE

(From the Viking News)
Defects in the Aberhart Social Credit theory were pointed out to the agricultural committee of the legislature Friday morning by Prof. Elliott of the economics department of the University of Alberta.

Alberta, he pointed out, is not a self-contained community. She has to export her products, and buy from outside the province, most of the things she needs. Nothing in the proposed plan could increase the export of her products. She only produces 22 per cent of the articles she requires. Her people have to make large interest payments outside the province and these non-negotiable certificates would not be accepted outside the province, where they would be valueless.

A little more local expenditure on local purchases would follow the first issue of Social Credit dividends, but purchases from outside would have to be paid for with currency or bank notes.

There would be no increase in the amount received from exports. The result would be that our supplies of circulating media would rapidly dwindle, causing fear and the export of circulating media for safety.

Dominion notes would rise to a premium while credit notes would sink. The cost of imported goods would rise and ultimately the dividend notes would become worthless.

The principle had been demonstrated in countries where unrestrained inflation had taken place; in France after the Revolution, in the Southern States during the Civil War and in Germany after the Armistice.

Prof. Elliott said that there was no provision for cancelling the issues of Social Credit. Instead Mr. Aberhart contemplates that people having surplus quantities of credit would sink them into bond issues drawing four per cent interest.

The only way to keep the $120,000,000 of certificates which Mr. Aberhart proposes to issue, would be to raise $120,000,000 by new taxation—a sum 60 per cent of the gross production of $180,000,000 in the normal year of 1930.

Prof. Elliott showed that only those who now receive less than $450 a year would benefit by the scheme.

A farmer with a gross income of $900 would receive an extra $300 in dividends. But his portion of the tax would be $480—making him $180 poorer than if he had no Social Credit.

The man who has a zero income out of his $300 would only pay $120 in taxes.

Dean Weir added that the plan would be unconstitutional under Sec. 91 of the B.N.A. Act. The term "non-negotiable" would not save it from penalty, because it would have to circulate at least once to be exchanged for goods.

Under section 138 of the Bank Act it is a punishable offence to issue a substitute for money, and the certificates would be construed as being substitutes for money.

It would be equally illegal to take the farmers' wheat at any fixed Just Price as in a B. C. case the Privy Council had held that the province had no right to control fruit prices.

"There is no power in the province to make any merchant accept the certificates in lieu of legal tender," said Dean Weir to Mr. Brownlee.

Scheme Would Collapse
J. E. Brownlee: The scheme would collapse right there.

A.—Yes.

Mr. Brownlee: Mr. Aberhart says he will give the farmer a payment out of taxation of imports. Has the province any power to tax imports?

A.—None whatever.

Hugh Farthing—Mr. Aberhart also says he would under some circumstances take steps to prohibit imports and to make trade agreements. Has the province any power to prohibit imports or to make trade agreements?

A.—The province has no powers to do either.

An opportunity was given to Mr. Rogers and any other exponent of the Aberhart plan to ask questions of Dean J. Weir and Prof. Elliott, but the opportunity was not accepted by any of them.

BULLETIN PUBLISHER IS ASSAULTED BY EX-U.F.A. MINISTER

(From the Viking News)

Edmonton, April 15.—Climaxing a stormy day in the legislature on Monday, a day in which the government relentlessly pressed toward final passage of its bills to restrict newspaper reporting of judicial proceedings in civil cases and to restrict newspaper privileges under the Libel and Slander Act, Charles E. Campbell, owner and publisher of the Edmonton Bulletin, was assaulted by O. L. McPherson, U.F.A. member of the legislature for Little Bow and former minister of public works and speaker in the legislature.

The assault occurred shortly after the legislature had adjourned for the dinner hour at 6 p.m.

The incident had its beginning in the morning.

John M. Imrie, vice-president and managing director of the Edmonton Journal, at a committee meeting in the morning had made the statement that to the best of his information, first publication in the Edmonton newspapers of any mention of the McPherson divorce case, had been in the case of his own paper at the instance of Hon. J. F. Lymburn, K.C., attorney general, and in the case of the other paper, by Mr. McPherson himself.

This evidence, so far as his paper was concerned, was corroborated by Mr. Campbell.

Celebrate Silver Wedding

On Friday evening last, April 12, a few friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Colin McLean, the occasion being their silver wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. McLean have lived the greater part of their twenty-five years in the Irma district, and have a wide circle of friends of both sexes, who wish them health and happiness for a long life together.

Mrs. C. Saville and Miss Betty McLean were at home for the happy event.

United Church Notes

There will be a special Easter Service next Sunday. The music will be appropriate and the sermon topic is "The Gospel of Immortality." After the service the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed. All members and friends of the church are urged to enter into the fellowship of the Lord's Table, for at this season it is peculiarly appropriate that we worship in this deeply significant way. Members of other churches are cordially welcome to share with us in the fellowship of this holy sacrament.

It is greatly to be regretted that the prospects of being able to hold services in the country are not very good. The minister was very hopeful that services would begin with Easter Sunday, and should it be possible, notices will be sent out.

Daughter: "Daddy, what is your birthstone?"

Daddy (father of seven): "I think it's a grindstone."

"This is the dearest night club I've ever been in."

"You said it. Even the lease has expired!"

He: "Give us a kiss."
She: "You and who else?"

Notice To Tractor and Motor Owners

For the balance of April you can buy any grade of Red Head Motor or Tractor Oil at a reduction of 10 cents per gallon off the regular price. Quality of Red Head Gas, Oils and Greases and a square deal are surely and steadily putting Red Head products in the lead. All Greyhound buses running out of Edmonton and Calgary use Red Head gasoline and oil exclusively. There must be a reason. Better order that drum of worth some consideration.

Canada's Greatest Problem

The Canadian people are confronted with a gigantic problem. We say the Canadian people advisedly because, while governments, Federal, Provincial and Municipal are all struggling with it, the problem is one towards the solution of which individual citizens must make their contribution. The fact that it is a problem facing all other nations offers no consolation because the more acute and difficult it is in other lands only serves to make it more difficult in Canada.

The problem can be stated in two or three words,—unemployment and relief.

The unemployed man or woman wants work and the wages which work will bring to them. Failing work and wages, they must be provided by Governments with the necessities of life—food, clothing, fuel and shelter. Such necessities can, of course, only be provided by the State through the taxation of those other men and women who are employed, or still have some savings accumulated throughout the years of the past in order to make provision for their own future and old age. The only other way is for Governments to borrow money and add such borrowings to their public debts upon which interest must be paid through increased taxation, and the principal sum of which is passed on as a liability for future generations to meet.

So far as municipalities, with their small and limited sources of revenue, are concerned, many have reached the limit of what their taxpayers are able to pay in order to care for those who are unemployed. Further taxation simply means that more people will be unable to pay it, and, failing to do so, will lose what they still have and will, in turn, be forced "on relief". Faced with this situation, a largely attended conference of the mayors of the leading cities and towns of Canada unanimously declared the inability of the municipalities to any longer carry their share of the relief burden and called upon the Federal Government to assume it in its entirety.

On their part, the Provinces,—and more particularly the Western Provinces, which, in addition to the general and world-wide economic depression, have suffered more severely than other portions of the Dominion because of successive years of crop failures owing to the unprecedented drought conditions which have prevailed,—now find it impossible to raise, either by taxation or borrowings, the Provincial share of relief expenditures and at the same time assume the share of the municipalities.

It must be recognized, therefore,—the truth cannot be ignored,—that the problem is a national one, and one that most intimately concerns every Canadian citizen and every Canadian interest. This must now be accepted as a fact even though under the constitution of this country the responsibility of making provision for people in need is primarily a municipal responsibility. That is, the actual facts of the situation override all constitutional aspects.

Then, there is the other side of the picture. Tens of thousands of people who are "on relief" complain that the amounts allotted to them are inadequate to their needs and desires. They are insistent in their demands that relief allowances be substantially increased. They are organizing to enforce their demands, and all over the country communitarian agitators are playing upon the passions and prejudices of the masses, and making demands which it is manifestly impossible for the remainder of the people to satisfy.

These agitators all loudly object to people on relief being asked to render any service whatever in return for the payments being regularly made to them. They insist that no person should be called upon by the municipality in which they reside to perform any work in return for the assistance extended to them. They refuse to recognize that, in effect, people are being paid what is tantamount to wages in advance, small though they may be, by their fellow citizens, and they declare that to ask relief recipients to render any service in return for such assistance is to make "slaves" of them.

Yet Canadians worthy of the name, and knowing their country's difficulties, should be grateful for what is being done in their behalf, and if there is any manhood left in them they should not only be ready and willing, but actually anxious, to make what return they can to their fellow citizens and their country. These agitators demand work,—not for themselves but for those they would make their dupes,—and when work in its usually accepted meaning cannot be provided but State assistance is extended, they then advocate refusal to work in exchange for such assistance, or even for a small fraction of it. Why? Because they are out to destroy the very institutions of government and the very people who are now providing the unemployed with the necessities of life.

Such is the major Canadian problem of to-day. It is one, let it be repeated and emphasized, that vitally affects every citizen. It is their problem; what are they going to do about it?

We submit that the citizen who is employed, or has an income, or some reserves, should pay his taxes uncomplainingly, willingly and promptly and thus assist his country in a time of great difficulty. More, he should make every effort to provide a little work, no matter how small or temporary the job may be, for some one out of work, and thus relieve the pressure.

We submit further that all persons on relief should be reasonable in their demands, should endeavor to get along with as little as possible, rather than demand more. And they should show their manhood and self-respect by willingly, and at all times, rendering such service in return to their fellow citizens as it may be in their power to render.

This is no true to "rock the boat," and any person who seeks to do so is not a true Canadian, but has an ulterior motive to serve, and may well be described as an enemy of the country.

To Abolish Noise

"Silent" House Will Be Shown At London Exhibition

London is to have a "house of hush," a house so quiet that in it a person may be able to hear the proverbial pin drop. There is to be a "silence" exhibition in June at which it will be possible to see—but not to hear—the following:

A silent house, with silent lift and silent locks, sound-proof ventilating windows, sound-proof doors; silenced motorcycles; a noiseless motorcar; silent vacuum cleaners; silent road drills; a silent factory room.

The exhibition, at the Science Museum, South Kensington, will be organized by the Anti-Noise League, of which Lord Horder is president.

Cares For Indian Wards

Recent Incident Shows Canada Is Not Neglecting Them

Canada's paternalistic care of her Indian wards was shown recently when an heroic and successful 11-day search in the dense, snow-packed northern bush of Ontario for Joseph Mann, an ailing Red man and his squaw, was revealed. Both suffering from a severe attack of influenza, the couple were taken to Timmins for treatment.

It was the kindly Rev. Canon George Prewer of Sudbury, famous Anglican missionary to the Indians, who directed the gruelling search by dog team and airplane over an area of 400 square miles. The Dominion government paid all expenses.

HER ARMS AND LEGS IMMOVABLE

Ten Years With Rheumatism

To this woman it must have been like commencing to live a new life, when she began to use her arms and legs again, after they had been helpless for ten years.

"I suffered with rheumatism," she writes, "and had been bedridden since 1920. I could not move arms or legs, and had to be fed like a child. Everybody thought I should be an invalid all my life. I forced myself to fight against it, and tried a number of different things. It was Karsch's eventually saved me, and to-day I consider it is saving my life. My condition has greatly improved, and my limbs are gradually becoming more supple. Already I can eat without assistance, and dress myself—which I had not done for ten years."

Two of the ingredients of Karsch's Salts are the most effective solvents of uric acid known to medical science. They swiftly dull the sharp edges of the painful crystals, then convert them into a harmless solution. Other ingredients of these Salts have a stimulating effect upon the kidneys, and assist them to expel the dissolved uric acid needles through the natural channel.

Ruler Of Tonga Gives Ancient Turtle With History

King George is to be presented a three-hundred-year-old turtle with a history when Queen Salote, the six-foot-three ruler of Tonga, arrives in London. She is now on her way with her son, who attends an English school. In 1774 Captain Cook, famous British navigator, made a forced landing, owing to shortage of provisions, at the Pacific Islands of Tonga. His reception, to his surprise, was so warm that he renamed them the Friendly Islands, the name by which they have been known ever since. Captain Cook had a turtle, then 160 years old, on board, intended as a present for George III. He gave it as a peace offering to King Tubou, of Tonga. Queen Salote, his descendant, inherited the turtle.

Germany's Air Force

Hitler Reports It Is Numerically Stronger Than Britain's

The London Daily Mail said Adolf Hitler had informed Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, that Germany already has an air force numerically stronger than Great Britain's.

The Daily Mail did not reveal the source of its information but it was known Simon returned from Berlin with documents presented to him by Hitler in which, it is understood, Der Fuehrer frankly revealed the extent of Germany's armaments in the air.

The disclosure of Germany's air strength was reported to have caused grave concern to the British cabinet. Ministers held several informal meetings for a preliminary discussion of what is expected to be a "showdown" debate on the entire German situation when Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, returns from a swing through European capitals.

Out-Doing Jules Verne

English Winter Forecast Passenger Rocket Doing 14,000 M.P.H.

Jules Verne, who thrilled a former generation by flights of fancy into the future, and even H. G. Wells, with his tales of the planets, are outdone by Charles G. Philp in a book about the "Stratosphere and Rocket Flight," just published.

He prophesies as of "not far distant date" passenger rocket airplanes capable of doing 14,000 miles per hour and of crossing the Atlantic eventually, in even faster planes, in 60 seconds.

Passengers, it appears, will be reasonably comfortable. They will lie down hermetically sealed in hammocks. Special measures are taken to counteract trouble with breathing, for the machine is out of sight of the ground in 30 seconds and passenger's bodies become heavier than lead.

When the rocket plane approaches its destination, retarding rockets check its headlong dive. Mr. Philp's description of the flight makes one itch to take a ticket—for one's most detested neighbor.

Mr. Philp tells us that plans of the first passenger carrying rocket yet devised have been acquired by the German War Ministry. A 24-foot projectile, built after these plans, carried a passenger six miles into the air, two years ago, and landed him safely after 10½ minutes.

Other wonders predicted by Mr. Philp are an artillery shell, with a 15-month age, directed by radio, and bomber planes cruising 30 miles above the earth and sweeping towards their targets at 3,000 miles per hour.

Long Distance Record

Telephone Call From Liner Covered Distance Of 17,887 Miles

Sir Julian Cahn, noted British cricket captain who took a British cruise to the United States and Canada 15 months ago, holds the world's record for long distance telephoning. Sir Julian's record, said wireless telephone operators of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain when the world cruise ship arrived at Hong Kong recently, was made two weeks before when the ship was at sea between Singapore, Straits Settlements and Bangkok.

Atmospherics prevented the reception of a call from the Empress of Britain to Nottingham, England, by the London receiving terminal. But the call was successfully completed by routing it direct from the ship to San Francisco, overland from there to New York, and by beam wireless to England.

At the time Sir Julian talked he was seven hours ahead of London time. The San Francisco control station was nine hours behind London and New York, of course, three hours ahead of the Pacific station. Rough computation shows a distance of 17,887 miles for the conversation between the Empress of Britain and London-off which 9,275 miles was a direct connection between the ship and San Francisco. Direct, the voice would have travelled only 7,950 miles.

Records Made Years Ago

Carry Voice Of Jenny Lind But Cannot Be Found

Somewhere in Sweden or Denmark the "voice" of Jenny Lind, the Swedish nightingale is believed to lie forgotten. Possibly it is in an attic or a storehouse. The famous singer, it has been revealed, made records in Paris in 1887, shortly after the first phonograph was put on the market. The records were of the old cylinder type: After Jenny Lind's death, it is believed, they were sent either to Stockholm or Copenhagen. A Swedish newspaper is appealing to its readers to search their attics, old trunks and boxes in case they may possess the precious records without knowing it.

A Native Of Asia

The parsnip that is used here is a native of Asia and Europe. We have what are called Wild Parsnips in Canada, but they are poisonous. The parsnip differs from carrots and all other vegetables in being greatly improved in taste by being left in the ground all winter in the field in which it is grown. The winter's frost seems to give it relish. But it will not keep long after being dug. It is a splendid vegetable for fattening sheep and oxen. It gives to mutton and to beef a superior flavour. The last half of March and the first ten days of April are the best for spring parsnips.

GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT

THE TENDERFOOT

By GEORGE B. RODNEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail," "The Canyon Trail," Etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector till now returns to tell Dustin and Spike Goddard, who had grubstaked him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore.

Dustin unexpectedly comes along while Stone and Edith are riding fence, and seeing them, stops and talks to Edith. He mentions their dispute could be settled by marrying him, and Edith refuses his proposal with remarks that make Dustin furious. He insults Stone, who promptly throws him into a pool of water.

Dustin learns that Gerald Keene has been sent for, and also that Dad Kane has seen the Broken Spur men rustling Carr's cattle. He sets out with Dad Kane to learn the location of his gold discovery. Dad Kane shows Dustin the mine.

They go back to camp, and Dustin shoots Kane. He fixes the shooting on Peyotl Gregg, a drug addict, who, stupefied by the narcotic he had taken, did not know whether he was guilty or not. They bury Kane and then return to the Broken Spur ranch.

Meanwhile at the Hour Glass, Carr, Crewe and Stone speculate as to the meaning of entries in the notebook belonging to Dad Kane that Stone had found. Stone thinks of a possible solution, and, accompanied by Edith Carr, rides out to Red Water to test out his theory, which proves correct, and they find the rich gold deposit mentioned in the prospector's notebook. As they return to the ranch, they meet Dustin leaving the house, who, purposefully, unsuccessfully tries to ride down Stone.

Sam Dustin, the day before Gerald Keene's arrival in Seco, cunningly suggests to Peyotl Gregg that Keene or Kane was a relative of the old prospector, and was seeking information as to the old man's whereabouts. If Peyotl wanted to live, and prevent finding out about the murder, Gregg should shoot Keene when he arrived.

(Now Go On With The Story)

Even Dustin grinned at the thought of the old ranch-man, once the Nestor of Seco Valley, being searched for a gun in a murder case. Gary was laughing frankly as he thrust a big hand into the side-pocket of Joe Carr's coat. But that grin suddenly froze on his face as he drew from the pocket a wadded mass of green-and-yellow silk. He seized it by one dirty corner and shook it out and all the watchers started back as a short heavy Derringer pistol clattered to the floor.

Garry's eyes bulged and Crewe's face changed. Carr, grown suddenly old and grave, stared at the pistol as Garry reached for it but Stone was too quick for him. He quickly retrieved the weapon and examined it carefully and a silence fell that Dustin broke.

"I reckon this clears me of all suspicion," he snarled. "When the Hourglass gets to shootin' their own partners they're droppin' pretty damned low."

Garry turned sharply on him: "You're cleared, Dustin," he said. "But I'm givin' you a word of advice. Say nothin' of this here till I tell you. If any word gets out, I'll know who told it. He'll have me to reckon with. Get me?"

Dustin looked at him queerly and a chilly feeling ran up his back. He did not fear many men but he had a most healthy regard for old Jim Garry.

"Good Lord," he snapped: "I'm not interested in Hour-Glass killin' off Hour-Glass. It's rat eat rat as far as I'm concerned. I'll say not a word about it."

The door slammed behind him and Garry turned to old Carr.

"Listen now, Joe..." His voice had grown suddenly old and tired for he had been fond of Joe for more than a generation. "You got some explainin' to do, Joe. Where'd you get that Derringer?"

"I never had a Derringer in my life," said Carr dully. "I ain't got one now."

Garry quietly "broke" the pistol. One barrel had been fired, in the other a loaded cartridge nestled and the lower barrel was foul from the explosion. He extracted the empty shell and fitted it to the big lead bullet that Epps quietly handed him. It fitted. Still Carr stared at him. Then Stone took the pistol from Garry's hand and examined it. Crewe's face was a study. He could not believe the evidence of his own eyes; yet...

He knew old Joe Carr and loved him.

"I think we're barkin' at a knot, Sheriff," said Stone quietly.

Garry turned on him. "When I need a tenderfoot to tell me my business, I'll call you," he said acidly. "What you got that's new?"

"A little bit of brains," said Stone.

"You can see for yourself that the man's shot on the right side..." Just above the liver. Every one of this room knows that he was standing on Mr. Carr's right. Did Carr reach around the man and shoot right toward himself?

Epps and Crewe both nodded and Garry looked puzzled.

"Are you sure Carr was standin' as you say?" he asked.

"Absolutely certain."

"Here," said Epps quickly: "We can't wait till you give this case before we treat the man. I want some one to help him over to my house. I'll take care of him till you can get a regular doctor."

"One minute..." Garry turned to Carr...

"Joe," he said gently: "God knows I don't like to arrest you but I've got to. The evidence is too strong against you. If you give me your word of honor not to make any break, I'll take you over to my house as a guest till we can find out what's to be done. If this man dies, it'll be a charge of murder I suppose. You say his name's Keene?"

"Yes, Gerald Keene," said Crewe.

"He and Joe own the Hour-Glass together. That's the best thing to do, Jim. You take care of Joe. I'll get out to the Hour-Glass. I'm afraid it'll take some explainin' to make Edith understand."

With Logan's help they got the wounded man over to Epp's house and a woman was secured to act as a nurse and Crewe drew Stone aside.

"You better stop here to-night. I reckon," he said. "What is it?" he said sharply for Stone was tugging at his pocket.

"I was goin' to say that I'd better stay in here," said Stone. "I've got a claw I want to look into, Crewe..."

old man Carr never shot that man; green-and-yellow bandanna. "You can't tell one Derringer from another," he said: "But wearing apparel is different. Did you ever know any man wear a damnable thing like this? It's got three bullet-holes in it so there's no doubt about what took place. The would-be murderer had the gun wrapped in this and he fired through it. That's why we didn't see any sparks. Did you ever see any one wearing a thing like this?"

Crewe shook his head. Things were moving too fast for him.

"I never did," he said. "Well..." I just got to get back to the Hour-Glass. Look out for young Keene and old Joe, will you, Stone?"

Stone promised and Crewe started the car down the street.

The moment darkness hid the car, Stone hunted up Epps and almost by force dragged him into his office.

Neither man ever told what took place in that office but in a half-hour Stone emerged triumphant and headed down the street for the little office where Jameson held forth. That gentleman, bending over a form-case, was snatched to a stool and an evil-smelling mass of green-and-yellow silk was thrust under his nose.

"What's that smell like?" demanded Stone sharply.

Jameson, who had been writing a hasty account of the shooting, sniffed and spat.

"Peyotl," he said. "Why?"

"That's what struck me," said Stone. "Can you possibly be mistaken?"

"Good Lord, no. It's peyotl all right. Where'd you get it?"

"Ever see any one wearing a thing like that?"

"I never did..." Look here, Stone...

Stone told him in well-chosen words and few and Jameson took fire at the recital.

"It looks to me as though you've got a solid reason to chew on," he said finally. "I only know one man who can be said to regularly use that infernal stuff. That's the man Peyotl Gregg out at the Broken Spur. I'll

CHAPTER XVI.

Sam Dustin headed for the Broken Spur half drunk with liquor and success. Even in his most hopeful moments he could never have hoped that Peyotl Gregg, having killed Gerald Keene, would place the blame for that killing on Joe Carr. Joe, of all men!

"The only man who could have had a motive," he chuckled. "If Keene dies, Carr gets his half of the Hour-Glass. I'll take it away from Carr and have the ranch and the mine too..." And the girl... Wait!

A sudden illuminating thought came to him and he slapped his leg hard. "By God," he said. "I've got it and I've got the girl..." But it's pretty hard on Peyotl. First of all I've got to find out if the man Keene will die."

He flung out of the car and almost leaped into the house. Spike Goddard was flung aside roughly as Dustin jerked the telephone from its hook.

"What're you callin' Doc Epps for?" demanded Spike.

Dustin waved him into silence and Epps voice came thinly across the wire. Goddard could hear it plainly.

"Oh, Dustin at the Broken Spur. Huh? Yes... This is Doctor Epps..." What?... Oh... I get you... Yeah... I know who you mean. I brought him over to my house..." Gerald Keene, of course...

"The partner of old man Carr at the Hour-Glass. You are interested, huh? Well, I'll tell you, Dustin. He died not ten minutes ago..." Epps' voice sounded strained and uncertain but there was no mistaking the words. "The coroner'll be in to-morrow. It looks like a hemp neck-tie for old man Carr."

Spike Goddard heard it all and stood staring at his partner as he flung up the receiver.

"What the hell has happened, Sam?" he demanded.

He considered Dustin in silence while Dustin told him all that had occurred. Finally:

"Look out you don't trip," he said curtly. "There was a man once who held all thirteen trumps but lost the game..."

"How could that be, you poor fool?" demanded Dustin.

For answer Spike grinned at him. "It was old-fashioned Whist. He said. 'One man held all thirteen trumps. It was his partner's lead. He led an ace and when his partner trumped it he got mad and shot him. The jury said it was justifiable homicide...' Mind you haven't bit off too much to chew."

"You fool..." Dustin grabbed him by the arm. "Don't you see it yet? Peyotl Gregg shot this man Keene and planted the pistol on old Joe Carr... Joe, who inherits the Hour-glass by the death of Keene. We've got Carr's note and we alone know of old-Kane's mine..."

"Nobody knows Peyotl killed him," said Spike.

"I do. Old man Carr'll be held for the murder. He'll hang unless they find out about Peyotl. Don't you reckon Edith Carr'll marry me to get her father clear?"

When Is Middle Age?

English Judge Thinks It Might Be Around Sixty

What is middle age? The question was asked by Lord Hewart, the Lord Chief Justice, at the Sussex Assizes when the counsel in a case before the court referred to a certain man as "middle-aged."

"Can you tell me what is middle age?" His Lordship asked. "Isn't it always a little further on than the man who is speaking has got?" He asked the age of the man in question.

"Forty-one," replied counsel. "A mere child," retorted the Lord Chief Justice, who himself is 65. "Don't call him middle-aged for another 20 years."

PLANNING THE HOME GARDEN

(Experimental Farm Note)

Where the area devoted to the garden is limited, careful attention must be given to such points as distance between rows and between plants, so that all space may be used to advantage. Each plant must have room to mature, yet gaps must be avoided. A study of rotation of crops and time of maturity is of great value in planning the small garden. Such crops as radish and spinach may be grown as inter-crops between the rows of later maturing crops like carrots and parsnips. Late sown crops may be planted between the rows of early maturing crops just before the latter are ready to harvest. Two or three crops of such plants as radish and lettuce may be grown on the same area. A succession of quick growing crops by planting at intervals is also desirable.

Under irrigation, the different varieties of vegetables require different amounts of water and at different times. The rows should therefore be planted in such a manner that water may be applied to each row as required. Furrow irrigation is preferable to sprinkling and distribution may be obtained by small perforations at proper spacings in a ten or twenty foot length of pipe. The outer end should be blocked and the other end fitted with a hose connection.

Where land is cheap or where the garden may be laid out in any shape desired, ease of cultivation should be considered. All the rows may be placed the same distance apart, just wide enough for a horse cultivator, whether the vegetable requires little room or a great deal of room to mature. The rows should be as long as possible for horse cultivation and several kinds of vegetables may be planted in the same row. Less time is wasted in turning, and also less ground in turning ends which are often weedy. A few minutes with a horse cultivator will keep a farm garden reasonably free from weeds during the rush season in the spring when there is not time for hand hoeing.

Horse cultivation reduces the amount of hand labor to a minimum and brings down the cost of production. At the same time it often means the difference between success and failure with the farm garden. For this reason, the garden should be located close to both house and barn. Being readily accessible from the barn may mean time would be taken to cultivate the garden when it would not if a special trip were necessary for the work.

The ease with which the Grads defeated the Vancouver girls, and thus won the Western Canada championship, leads us to believe that the present team will give an excellent account of itself on its eastern trip. May they return loaded with honors, for these girls are true ambassadors of sport.

tion of five to seven per cent. of alfalfa meal to the mash would give improved results. Carrots, buttermilk and skim-milk are known to be beneficial supplements.

Store eggs for hatching in a room free from draughts and at a temperature not over 60 degrees F. Egg cases make convenient containers. These should be placed on their sides and given half a turn twice daily.

SELECTION OF EGGS FOR HATCHING

(Experimental Farm Note)

In the selection of eggs for hatching, only those weighing at least 21 ounces to the dozen should be chosen. They should be fresh, of normal shape and of good shell texture.

It is generally recognized that hens are more satisfactory than pullets as breeders for egg production, flocks, the chief reason being that mortality in rearing and throughout the pullet year is higher in the progeny of pullets than in that of hens.

Only healthy parent stock which has been tested for pullorum disease should be mated. At the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, Alberta, the hens used as breeders are all yearlings or older. These birds have shown ability in egg production and egg size, and in maintenance of body weight during their pullet year. Males to be used should show ample vigor, be of good type and size and of good breeding. When a male bird is used for a second or subsequent breeding season it is because his prepotency has been proven by the performance of his daughters.

The feeding of breeders is essentially important. A good laying mash containing two parts of cod liver oil to each one hundred pounds of the mash mixture should be before the birds at all times. If the birds do not have access to pasture the addi-

SPORT PEEPS

The mythical all-star team of the Big League Hockey has just been announced. This selection was made by the managers of all the teams under promise of secrecy in voting. Strange to say the world champions, the Maroons, winners of the Stanley Cup, have no representative in the first team. In the finals at least, their engines functioned like a Rolls Royce with no special "spark plug" to produce extra power. One outstanding player does not make a good team.

This reference to "Spark Plug" recalls the now famous mascot of the Grads. Added back in 1924 this cute little animal with travelling case was presented to the girls. He has covered over 50,000 miles with them. You may laugh at the superstition or psychology that causes the girls to group about the mascot as they take the floor, but they seem to develop that extra confidence that produces victories. Remember how Fred used to win his curling games? He kept that rabbit's foot (left rear, of course) and occasionally stroked it, as it lay down deep in his pocket. The other fellow had no chance.

The Edmonton Yacht Club now boasts 18 dinghies of the 14-foot class. They propose hauling many of these to various lakes throughout the district and stir up interest in this great sport. Possibly our lake is a little small, but pictures recall the time when two sailing yachts and some row boats afforded much pleasure there. It would be a pleasant sight to behold those racing dinghies on Lake Thomas.

They used to wonder where all the pins went. Now they marvel at the golf balls instead. One and a half million dozen of these are made each year. These with golf equipment make a total of over $20,000,000 outlay on this sport. There must be a lot of golfers.

The ease with which the Grads defeated the Vancouver girls, and thus won the Western Canada championship, leads us to believe that the present team will give an excellent account of itself on its eastern trip. May they return loaded with honors, for these girls are true ambassadors of sport.

tion of five to seven per cent. of alfalfa meal to the mash would give improved results. Carrots, buttermilk and skim-milk are known to be beneficial supplements.

Store eggs for hatching in a room free from draughts and at a temperature not over 60 degrees F. Egg cases make convenient containers. These should be placed on their sides and given half a turn twice daily.
